

Prof. Francisco Iniesta

email: iniesta@iese.edu

Phone: 513250

Assistant: Sol Robles

Assistant email : srobles@iese.edu

Office: Pl. 1

Phone: 513157

Marketing Management

Introduction

As businesses are increasingly defined by networks of partnerships and by its customers, marketing should respond for more than just the sale, making sure that every aspect of the business is focused on delivering superior value to customers. Marketing management as a distinct business activity will be responsible for being the expert on the customer and keeping the rest of the networked organization aware. The skill of marketing is the skill to monitor customers, competitors, and collaborators, and to find in each domain a better way to design and deploy the firm's capabilities to serve the customers at a profit. In this way marketing helps to set a firm's strategic direction.

This responsibility in turn will operate at different levels. At the corporate level marketing will inform the problem of defining the business the company is in and help determine the mission, scope, shape, and structure of the firm. Here, some of the major roles will be to assess the attractiveness of alternative markets, to promote customer orientation, and to develop the firm's overall marketing value proposition. At this level, the role of marketing as a culture is evident. At the business level, the key issue will be how to compete in the chosen business. This will be achieved by segmenting the market and, after a careful analysis of competitors and selected customers, elect a distinctive position. Finally, the operational issues of the familiar marketing mix need to be resolved.

Objectives

The objectives of this course are:

- To introduce key basic marketing concepts needed to deal with business problems.
- To provide the marketing perspective in approaching business problems, including strategy development.
- To refine decision-making, analytical skills, and the ability to debate ideas with the help of others.

Competences

Basic Competences

- Possess and understand knowledge that provides a basis or opportunity to be original in the development and / or application of ideas, often in a research context. (CB6).
- The students know how to apply the knowledge acquired and their ability to solve problems in new or unfamiliar environments within broader (or multidisciplinary) contexts related to their area of study. (CB7).

- The students can integrate knowledge and face the complexity of formulating judgments based on information that, being incomplete or limited, includes reflections on social and ethical responsibilities linked to the application of their knowledge and judgments. (CB8).
- Students know how to communicate their conclusions and the knowledge and ultimate reasons that support them to specialized and non-specialized audiences in a clear and unambiguous way. (CB9).
- Students possess the learning skills that allow them to continue studying in a way that will be largely self-directed or autonomous. (CB10).

General Competences

- To distinguish and categorize relevant information effectively for business decision making. (CG7).
- To acquire the vision of a global citizen when dealing with the multicultural aspects present in the international market. (CG10).

Specific Competences

- To design rigorous market studies to identify new business opportunities within given segments and position products accordingly. (CE17).
- To analyze consumer behavior through empirical analysis tools and theoretical models on human behavior. (CE18).
- To plan the development and launch of new products or the repositioning of existing products, including all the organizational resources needed (financial, commercial, human, etc.). (CE19).
- To design marketing strategies that incorporate and take advantage of information systems and the new social media. (CE20).

Content

The first, and most important, is product/service selection (within the chosen market). A second critical element is price (for individual products and lines, while accounting for discounts, special conditions, promotions, etc.). Another is decisions regarding the distribution systems, i.e. the design and control of channels of distribution, through which our products and services move to the ultimate users. Other “going to market” decisions (sales-force, agents, partners, etc.) need to be addressed here too. Market communications decisions, a fourth element in the marketing mix, includes such components as print and television advertising, direct mail, trade shows, point-of-sale merchandise displays, sampling, and telemarketing.

Each level of strategy and each dimension of marketing must be developed in the context of the preceding level. The final implementation has to be founded in sound formulation at all levels. To complete the picture, marketing objectives and strategies have to be formulated taking into account the firm’s core competencies as well as its resource limitations.

Evaluation

Grades in this course will be based on the following:

- Class participation: 60% (SE4)
- Writing Report: 40% (SE2)

You will benefit from this course by exposing your analysis and judgment on the cases to the class. Class interactions will be the major way of achieving the goals of this course. The benefit that you derive from this course will be in direct proportion to the extent to which you expose your own viewpoints or conclusions to the judgment of the class. You should view class participation as an opportunity to enhance your understanding of the material. Be prepared to provide constructive input as the class works together to address the issues of the case.

ADENDA COVID-19

Ha sido necesario ajustar el calendario, para brindar la mejor experiencia de aprendizaje posible. Por esta razón, la clase presencial de esta asignatura ha sido pospuesta hasta septiembre 2020.